

ROBERT PHILIP

A LITTLE HISTORY

of

MUSIC

'A joy to read, whether you are musically expert or don't know your opera from your hip-hop.'

John Rutter

Contents

1 The What and Why of Music	1
2 Shadows of an Ancient Dance	8
3 The Poet Sings	15
4 Improvising to the Lute	20
5 Music as Meditation	27
6 The Eternal Sound of Gongs	33
7 Rhythm and Community	41
8 Spirits of the Ancestors	47
9 Dance and Harmony	54
10 Chanting in the Church, Singing in the Streets	61
11 Reason It Out, Write It Down	68
12 Old Corruption, New Thinking	76
13 Composers Spread Their Wings	83
14 Lutes and Keyboards	90
15 Reforming the Church, Educating the People	96
16 Conquest and Re-Conquest	103
17 Sing the Words, Speak the Music	109
18 The Appeal of Dramatic Music	115
19 Instruments and the Rise of the Orchestra	122

20	Star Singers and the Opera Market	129
21	A Composer's Life at Court and in the Church	136
22	Enlightenment and Revolution	142
23	African Slaves and Fashionable Europe	150
24	Storms, on the Stage and in the Mind	156
25	Becoming 'Classical'	162
26	The Artist as Priest and Visionary	169
27	Grand and Light, Sublime and Witty	175
28	Women Playing at Home and Abroad	183
29	Finding the Audience	190
30	Longing for My Own Country	197
31	Westernising and Modernising	205
32	Into the Darkness	213
33	Reaching for the Light	220
34	From Blues and Ragtime to Jazz	227
35	From Big Band to Bebop	234
36	Reacting to Repression	241
37	Just Rattle Your Jewellery	249
38	From Protest to Pop	256
39	Music in the 'Global Village'	263
40	Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow	271
	Index	279